port for San Francisco on Friday last. We understand that both hollers were thoroughly inspected by Mr. Young and Mr. Lomax, an experienced boiler Hallisten & Co. Henry R. Hollisten, maker, who pronounced them capable of carrying W. Juliane 8th, 1871. 22 3t Surviving Partner that from twelve to fourteen pounds is what would to San Francisco in the usual time. It is therefore probable that the time made this trip will be some what long. In our remarks of last week in regard to the fatal needent which occurred on board of the Moses Taylor on her trip down from San Francisco we did not intend to "give the impression," either directly or by implication, " of the existence of culpable carelessness on the part of the owner and agents of the ship." Neither was our statement that "nothing was done to her hollers, which had been in use for some time, and which were considered to be in good condition", "unfounded in truth." Cer tainly, we have since been informed upon very good authority that before the vessel left San Francisc the boilers were tested by hydraulic pressure, being as we were told, subjected to a strain many time greater than would ever be necessary to subject them by steam. This, so far as we can learn, was all that was done to the boilers, which, when we are speaking of repairs, means simply nothing at all The boilers being tested by severe pressure and found capable of withstanding it, of course needed no repairs; and that they really were subjected to a severe test, no one line a right to deny, because the although the Inspector in San Francisco limited the steam to be carried (as we are informed by the same authority,) at twenty pounds, experienced mechanics here consider only seven pounds safe. We certainly can not believe that the owner or the agents of the present line are guilty of "culpable carelessness" in risking the lives of the unfortunate victims of the explosion any more than we believe that the carelessness of a fireman, (whose duty it was to throw coals into the furnaces,) in the presence of the engineer and the water-tender, was the cause of his own death and that of five others. It does not look reasonable that a person who is inaugurat ing a new line of steamers would, in the beginning at least, imperil the success of the enterprise t using vessels which he had reason to suppose were

We should not have reverted to this subject has it not been that our neighbor of the Advertises In its last issue, accused us of making statements it regard to it which were "unfounded in troth," and of saying what we did on the subject "for the direct purpose of giving the impression of the existence of enlyable carelessness on the part of the owner and agents of the ship." Our statements were true we did not intend to give, nor did we give the impression that anyone was guilty of "enlpuble carelessness." We will now state, however, that had we been satisfied that anyone, no matter who had been guilty of such "cultuble carclessness" as to have sacrificed the lives of six men, and to have jeopardized the prosperity of the newly insgurted steam line to the Colonies, we should have, as h our duty as journalists, plainly pointed out the our duty to screen any one who deserved it, from

"Im Namen des zum Reiche vereinigten Beutschen Velkes, spricht er zeinen warmen Dank allen ferneu Stammesgenersen aus, deren patriotische, oft unter Gefahren und Unbillbehnetigte Theilnahme die nationale Ernebung stackte, den Schritt der siegreichen Heere befingelte, die gebrachten Opfer milderte und Unbillbehreiten. zur Heilung der geschlagenen Wunden beitrug.
